Troops And Montebourg Fall Situation Is "Encouraging"

despite all German efforts to eliminate it.

The air forces in Britain, in addition to supporting the invasion forces with overhead cover and blows against enemy communication lines behind the front, evidenced their versatility by resuming large-scale operations against the Nazi war machine deep within the Reich.

Early morning raiders poured heavy weights of explosive on the Nazis' synthetic oil production center of Gelsenkirchen, in the Ruhr valley, while other bombers lighted enormous fires in the devastated city of Cologne, industrial giant of the Rhineland.

Four important railroad centers as well as bridges in the Caen battle area were hit heavily by this morning's raiders.

And, from Mediterranean bases, warplanes took off before dawn to blast German oil refineries northwest of the Hungarian capital of Budapest. It was the fourth successive day's operations against enemy petroleum installations in the tottering Balkans.

These Allied airmen also hammered retreating German troops across the entire Italian battle front. These routed Nazis attempted a stand in the Apennines but were beaten back in "fierce fighting" by South African armored forces of the Fifth Army. On the Tyrrhenian coast sector, the Americans met stiffening resistance some 77 miles northwest of Rome. However, on the Adriatic flank, the British Eighth Army continued unchecked in its drive which overran the road junction of Popoli, crossed the Saline river at several points and occupied a number of other towns north of the Pescara river.

The Russian Communist party newspaper, Pravda, made clear the aims of the new Soviet offensive which continued to smash ahead against reinforced Finnish defenses on the Karelian isthmus. The newspaper reminded the Finns they had rejected "generous armistice terms," and added that the "hour of retribution has struck."

In the Pacific, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's airmen hit Palau on the outer approaches to the Philippines by "day and night." They thus provided cover for a carrier task force of the Pacific fleet which hit Guam and other Marianas island bases of the Japs for the second straight day.

BOY, 16, BRIDE 37, CLAIM LOVE AT FIRST SIGHT

VANCOUVER, Wash., June 13.—Ronald Smith, 16, was honeymooning today with his 37-year-old bride, the former Mrs. Mary Alice Bruen, following their marriage yesterday in Vancouver.

The bridegroom said they had known each other for nine years ever since he was seven years old. But, "it was love at first sight," said the youth, formerly his wife's chauffeur.

The Rev. Paul Kunzman, the Lutheran minister who performed the marriage ceremony, said he was reluctant to marry them, but was finally persuaded by the boy's mother. The bride, a widow, has two children, one and three years old.

The bridegroom wore sports clothes to the wedding with his fingernails painted green "to match Mary's—we wanted everything alike."

SENT TO SCHOOL

Eloise Leach, 17, East Mound street who was arrested Sunday morning by police chief William McCrady and patrolman Elmer Merriman near the Franklin street school building was sent to the Girls Industrial School at Delaware as a delinquent, by juvenile judge, Lemuel Weiden, Monday afternoon.

BOUND TO JURY

Leonard and James Mumaw were bound to the grand jury in the sum of $100 each after they pleaded not guilty before Mayor Ben Gordon Monday afternoon on charges of assault and battery filed by Goldie Martin and Eva Hamp.

ROILY STREAMS MAY HAMPER BASS FISHING

Opening of the black bass season Thursday, will find all streams in Pickaway county and vicinity muddy. While the streams have gone down to the original water level they are still roily and unless something unusual happens the bass fishing of the district will be done in ponds.

DEMOCRAT FOR VICE PRESIDENT GAINING FAVOR

Byrd-Bricker combination would win in Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Mississippi, Louisiana, Tennessee, Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico against a Roosevelt ticket.

Since the weekend, other influential southerners have contacted Republican leaders with the same suggestion. The new suggestion, however, gave the GOP leadership a sweeping choice of southern Democrats from which to name their vice presidential nominee. The southerners though expressed preference for Byrd, Jones or Stevenson.

Byrd, leader of Virginia's Democratic organization, has been in the senate since March 4, 1933. He is a newspaper publisher, farmer and apple-grower in private life. In the senate, he has led the fight for federal economy.

Gov. Jones, of Louisiana, will be 47 in July, was a sergeant in the United States Army in the First World War and is a lawyer by profession. He is married and the father of four children. Gov. Stevenson, of Texas, is 56, a banker and lawyer in private life. He served for many years in the Texas legislature. He is married and has one son.

ONE OF EIGHT HURT AS AUTO TURNS TURTLE

Genevieve Milley, 16, of Marion, was injured slightly Monday evening at 9 o'clock when the car in which she was riding with seven other companions turned over on Route 23 two and a half miles south of Circleville.

The car driven by Jack Gates Sparling, 17, steel worker, Marion, turned over twice landing on the top. A tire blowout was blamed for the accident.

Other occupants of the car were Raymond Snyder, 17, and Jerry Sparling, Marion, and Harold Houk, 18, Bucyrus. A soldier and two other girls were occupants of the car but their names were not learned.

Vern L. Pontius of the sheriff's department investigated the accident. The car, which was badly damaged, was taken to the Stout garage.

LOUIS B. MAYER AND WIFE PART AFTER 40 YEARS

HOLLYWOOD, June 13.—After 40 years the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Louis B. Mayer has ended in separation, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer spokesmen admitted today.

The head of the M-G-M studio, who, according to the treasury department, is the highest-salaried executive in the nation, has left Hollywood for a few days. He moved from his Santa Monica home and has been staying with friends, it was reported.

HUNS SAY ALLIES HAVE 23 DIVISIONS IN FRANCE

LONDON, June 13.—The German-operated Paris radio asserted today that the Allies now have 23 divisions on French soil.

Reserves and more material are arriving without interruption, it was said.

Radio Vichy said that British and American forces made new landings near St. Vaast-La-Hougue.

(The secret German Radio Atlantic said two American divisions were landed at Barleur, on the northeast tip of the Cherbourg peninsula, above St. Vaast, under cover of a naval bombardment.)

WORLD HEARING SPEECH OF FDR

beamed in all foreign languages, to Allies and enemies alike in the European and Pacific zones, at regular intervals for 24 hours.

Mr. Roosevelt revealed that European invasion troops lack nothing in the way of equipment to carry out their "dangerous, stupendous undertaking."

He called Germany the first enemy on the list for destruction and said that nation has her back against the wall—"in fact three walls at once!"

The President said the German hold on Italy was broken and that the Allies are pressing hard on the heels of German troops who were described as fleeing in ever-growing confusion.

Mr. Roosevelt recalled the German debacle in Russia and pointed out that Soviet armies are poised for crushing new blows.

In drawing this optimistic picture of Allied success, the President said it was appropriate to take a broad look at the panorama of world war on the opening of the Fifth War Loan drive.

Results of the drive, he declared, will have much to do with the speed with which the war can be brought to a successful conclusion.

The President commended the American people in these words: "What has been done in the United States . . . in raising and equipping and transporting our fighting forces, and in producing weapons and supplies of war, has been nothing short of a miracle."

The President said the two-fold purpose of the air war in Europe—to destroy German war industry and to knock out the Luftwaffe—had been highly successful.

He remarked triumphantly that the German fighter force now has "only a fraction of its former power."

Of the invasion, the President conceded that the assault had been costly in men and materials.

"Some of our landings," he added, "were desperate adventures, but from advices received so far, the losses were lower than our commanders estimated would occur."

A large part of the message was concerned with a review of the war from June, 1942, when Germany controlled almost all of Europe and her armies were still plowing into Russia. Now, he said, the Allies are on the offensive throughout the world.

JOHN McGRAN DIES SUDDENLY AT CITY HOME

John (Jack) McGran, 73, died Tuesday at 7:30 a. m. at his home, 158 East High street, of complications following a 15-year illness. He was widely known in Circleville and Pickaway county where he was employed for many years as a salesman of farm implements.

Mrs. McGran, the former Mary Ann Myers, survives and their only son, John Arthur McGran, is in U. S. Army service in the China-Burma-India War theatre. Other survivors are three nephews and four nieces of this city.

Born September 12, 1871, in Jackson township, he was the son of John and Hanna Houlihan McGran. He was a member of St. Joseph's Catholic church.

Funeral services will be Thursday at 10 a. m. at St. Joseph's church with the Rev. Fr. Edward E. Reidy officiating. Burial in charge of the Albaugh company will be in St. Joseph's cemetery.

Funeral bearers will include: Joseph Burns, Jesse Huffer, Herbert C. Melvin, Charles Rader, Frank Marion and Elliott Moore.

Friends of the family may call at the Albaugh chapel Wednesday evening.

MOTOR VEHICLE STAMPS SOLD AT POSTOFFICE

Motor vehicle federal tax stamps are now on sale at the post office, and must be secured by all motorists before July 1.

The tax is collectible on all motor driven vehicles including passenger cars, trucks and motorcycles that are in use on the highways. The cost of the stamps for all cars is $5. The stamps must be displayed in a prominent place on every motor vehicle.

Texas Democrats, New Dealers Await Court Ruling On Delegates

term advocates was to appeal to the state Democratic executive committee which met yesterday at Dallas. Impassioned pleas were made by Former Gov. James V. Allred and Herman Jones, but the committee voted to uphold Chairman George H. Butler's ruling.

This was that the question already had been passed on by the state convention, that the committee therefore was without jurisdiction, and that Allred's plea was out of order.

Allred and his associates thereupon went to the supreme court where their attorneys presented the mandamus motion to the judges in chambers. The court took the case under advisement without indicating when a decision might be expected.

The state Democratic committee was named defendant. The petition advanced an involved legal argument to the effect that electors are state officers and it is mandatory that they be chosen by primary election since the law says that only the names of those Democratic candidates chosen in the primaries may be printed on the general election ballot in November.

The legal contention was entirely novel. Since Texas has had presidential electors they have been nominated at the party conventions. But apparently there is no law saying how they shall be selected, and the only criterion for nominating them in convention is precedent.

Should the supreme court decision favor the fourth term advocates, it would mean two slates of electors would be on the primary ballot, the one named by the regular Democratic convention and the one named by the rump convention.

ASHVILLE

"Rube" Weber, who is employed at the Lockbourne Air Base, was recently sent with a crew of four to salvage a wrecked plane at Marietta, Ohio. While there he met Rev. Walter Peters, who was formerly pastor of the Ashville Methodist church. Rev. Peters, who is pastor of the Methodist church at Marietta, asked to be remembered to all his friends in this vicinity.

The canning of peas at the Ashville canning factory has passed the three-quarter mark according to employees. The pack this year has been of exceptionally fine quality.

PFC. Charles Gray, who is stationed at Camp Bowie, Texas, writes that he has plenty of work with but little play with three night problems a week. On these days the work lasts until about 1:00 a. m. and begins again at 5:30 a. m. He is receiving intensive training in anti-tank and anti-personal mines. This sounds like very dangerous work, as one mistake is the last. With the Texas temperature at 85-90 each day, the Texans say that Summer hasn't started yet until the thermometer reaches 120. Well, as for me, I'll take Ohio.

The Ed Irvin family visited relatives in Leesburg Sunday. The folk down home reported a "cloud burst" last Friday evening, which inundated fields and did considerable damage.

The Orlan Hines band met in the Community Club room Monday evening. They hope to be able to hold a dance at Community Park soon.

Tom Armstrong, assistant coach at Circleville, was a business visitor in Ashville Monday.

The Claude Kraft family attended the opening of the Ted Lewis Playground Monday evening. Claude evinced considerable interest in the Kahn Girls and Jaycees softball game. I understand that the last time Claude tried to play ball, he fell and broke his leg; so we hope the game didn't give him any young ideas.

Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Fullen and Larry visited with Mrs. Fullen's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Beaty of Darbyville, Sunday.

Members of Palmetto Lodge, Knights of Pythias, are reminded that a meeting will be held Wednesday at 8:00 p. m.

PARENTS BLAMED

NEW YORK—Many illness tendencies of adults, labeled as hereditary or constitutional, may have their background in childhood injuries brought about by faulty emotional attitudes on the part of the parents, according to Dr. Flander Dunbar of the Columbia university Medical School. Dr. Dunbar told the Child Study Association of Manhattan that "the human being is never so susceptible to this type of damage as during the period of infancy."

COP CAN RUN

NEW YORK — The speed of a Bronx patrolman, also a track star, recently saved a woman's life. Edward Van Valkenberg, the officer, dressed in polo shirt and shorts on a practice jog across the Triborough Bridge, saw the woman climb the railing 100 yards ahead of him. Sprinting, he reached her before she was able to jump. Taken to a hospital for observation, she said she intended to commit suicide.

MUD BUGGIES

The Story of Ex-Tanes

An important report to the men and women of America

For 33 months the facts of this report have been withheld from publication for strategic reasons.

During those 33 months, Sohio refineries have been producing a group of highly critical super-fuel ingredients which we call EX-TANES.

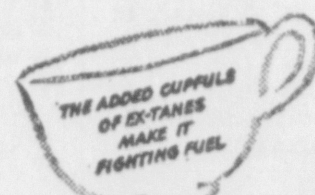

EX-TANES are extremely powerful petroleum molecules—power so concentrated that a few cupfuls added to a gallon of high-octane gasoline transforms it into the world's highest grade fighting fuel...

Power so concentrated that gasoline stepped up with these "miracle molecules" makes possible as much as a third bigger bomb loads—20% faster climb and 45% greater range for fighter planes.

Before Pearl Harbor, one Sohio plant was equipped for this desperately important job. Today, Sohio's output of EX-TANES flows from all Sohio plants to 10 other refiners in the United States and to our Allies, and all types of Allied aircraft are now powered with gasoline energized by "the added cupfuls" of EX-TANES.

The work of thousands of men and women of Sohio has made this record achievement possible.

We believe that their part in helping to hasten the end of this war—in giving an additional plus in power to our heroic men of the air—is one of the outstanding production stories in Ohio...

FACING REALITY

THERE has been an odd discrepancy in this country between the actual facts of war and the opinions apparently held by the American public. Most of our people have not only viewed the Japanese with disdain, but have believed that the European war was a rather small matter which would soon be "over, over there", when we once got started. The Nazis might keep us busy for the Summer, but by Autumn the menace would be beaten down.

Fortunately we are now beginning to abandon this perilous attitude. We have already learned, in the Orient, that it is a long way to Tokyo. As for Europe, although Italy has crumbled and our Russian allies have wrought miracles of reconquest, the flames fanned by Hitler are still far from being quenched.

We have seized a foothold on the continent, and apparently are clinging safely to the outer fringe of Normandy. But the ferocity with which the Germans are facing that slender front strongly suggests that it is still a long, hard way to Berlin. How else could it be, in view of the still great Nazi power and the punishment awaiting it when it weakens?

Victory this year, with an end of the war? Possibly. But facing present realities, it may be rash to expect it. This is our year of supreme test.

BASEBALL'S KEYSTONE

JOE Vosmik is a better outfielder than many in the American League, yet he is still playing for Minneapolis. That club has set his price beyond what the big leaguers wish to pay, so Joe must wear out his few remaining athletic years in the minors.

Such cases are fortunately few. They illustrate the bad side of the reserve rule which is the keystone of professional baseball. By this rule, a player once signed to a certain club must remain with it until that club is willing to release him. It would be virtual serfdom if the player did not understand, as he does, the nature of the contract, and sign it willingly. A free system by which he could move around at any time to the highest bidder, would wreck the game in no time. Without the rule binding a player to his club, New York and Chicago would get all the best players.

So well recognized is this fact that, though the reserve rule's legal foundation is doubtful, it has never been challenged. Even a Joe Vosmik hardly endangers it now.

In war you find the highest human efficiency and the greatest material waste.

The WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON

REPORTS INDICATE

WASHINGTON—The President's political advisers aren't shouting about it, but they have now received a 20-page report on the Texas "revolution" from Texas New Deal leader Alvin Wirtz, plus a word-of-mouth report from one confidential envoy arriving from the rebellious Lone Star State.

These appear to confirm the report that Jesse Jones and Will Clayton forces were behind the move in the Texas Democratic convention to instruct electors to disregard century-old precedent in the Electoral College and not necessarily vote for the winner next November.

Here are some of the facts laid before White House political advisers:

Chairman of the Democratic State Executive Committee who led the anti-Roosevelt group is George Butler, Jesse Jones' nephew and attorney for "Jesse H. Jones interests", including banks, radio stations, newspapers, office buildings, building and loan associations. The White House has been informed that Butler has the reputation in Houston of never doing anything without consulting Uncle Jesse, and that many Texas interests seeking to do business with Jones' Reconstruction Finance Corporation employ Nephew Butler as their attorney. It is inconceivable that he would act without Jesse's approval.

LEADERS OF REVOLT

Chairman of the Harris County (Houston) delegation which spearheaded the revolt against Roosevelt was John H. Crooker, attorney for Will Clayton, the man who sits at FDR's right hand when it comes to post-war liquidation.

Working with Crooker was Lamar Fleming, head of the giant Anderson, Clayton & Company, biggest cotton brokers in the world, of which Will Clayton is a partner. Both Fleming and Crooker came to Austin in advance of the convention to spearhead the drive against Roosevelt.

Others active in the move included the following representatives of big oil and gas companies: George Heyer, president of Crude Oil, a subsidiary of Sun Oil and in the employ of the Pews, Republican bosses of Pennsylvania; Clint C. Small, lobbyist for Humble Oil, a Standard Oil of N. J. subsidiary; Hiram King, chief lobbyist for Sinclair Oil; E. E. Townes, former chief counsel for Humble Oil; Neth Leachman, representative of Lone Star Gas.

So far, the President has been too busy with the invasion to have any show-down with his Secretary of Commerce and Will Clayton. And if he should go to England, as reported last week, it is doubtful if he has any show-down with them at all.

FDR ON EVE OF D-DAY

A group of Democratic and Republican Congressmen, calling themselves the Monday Night Club, dropped in to see the President on Monday, June 5. They did not know this was the eve of D-Day. The President did. However, they got no indication from him that momentous events were impending—except for one slight sign.

CHAPTER TWENTY-ONE

Nora lay under the blue comforter, staring at the ceiling. Scared through and through, thought Ellery.

Pat went quickly to the bed, took her sister's thin hands between both her brown ones. "Do you feel strong enough to talk?"

"What is it? What's the matter? Is Jim—did they—?"

"Nothing's happened, Nora," Ellery assured her.

"It's just that Ellery feels—I feel—it's the time of the three of us understood one another," said Pat. Then she cried: "Nora, please! Listen to us!"

Nora braced herself until she was sitting up. Pat propped the pillow against Nora's shoulders and sat down on the edge of the bed.

Then Ellery told Nora what he and Pat had learned—from the beginning. Nora's eyes grew larger and larger.

"I tried to talk to you," cried Pat, "but you wouldn't listen! Nora, why?"

Nora whispered: "Because it isn't true. Maybe at first I thought . . . But it's not—Jim. You don't know Jim. He's scared of people, so he acts cocky. But inside he's a little boy. He's much too tender to—to do what you think he did. Oh, please!"

Nora began to cry. "I love him," she sobbed. "I've always loved him. I'll never believe he'd want to kill me. Never. Never!"

"But the facts, Nora—," said Ellery.

She took her hands away; her wet eyes were blazing. "What do I care about those facts? A woman knows."

"And the three letters, Nora? The letters in Jim's hand-writing announcing your illness, your . . . death?"

"He didn't write them!"

"But Nora darling," said Pat, "Jim's handwriting—"

"Forged," Nora was panting now. "Haven't you ever heard of—forgery? They were—forged!"

"And the threat against you we heard him make, that day I told you about, when he—"

"Wasn't responsible!" cut in Nora.

No tears now. She was fighting with an adamant, frightening faith. And at the end, Ellery was arguing with two women; he had no ally.

"But you don't reason—," the author-detective exploded, throwing up his hands. Then he smiled.

"What do you want me to do?"

"Don't say anything about these things to the police!"

Nora sank back, closing her eyes. Pat kissed her and then signaled to Ellery.

But he shook his head. "I know you're tired, Nora," he said kindly, "but as long as I'm becoming an accessory, I'm entitled to your full confidence."

"Go ahead," murmured Nora. "What more do you want to know?"

"Why did Jim run out on you three years ago, just before you were to be married?"

"That!" Nora was surprised. "That wasn't anything. It couldn't have anything to do—"

"Nevertheless, I'd like to know," "You'd have to know Jim. When we met and fell in love, I didn't realize just how independent Jim was. I didn't see anything wrong in—well, accepting help from Father until Jim got on his feet. We'd argued about it for hours. Jim kept saying he wanted me to live on his cashier's salary."

"I remember those battles," said Pat, "but I didn't dream they were so—"

"I didn't take them seriously enough, either. When Mother told me Father was putting up the little house and furnishing it for us as a wedding gift, I thought I'd keep it a surprise for Jim. So I didn't tell him until the day before the wedding. He got furious."

"I see."

"He said he'd already rented a cottage on the other side of town for fifty dollars a month—it was all we'd be able to afford, he said, we'd just have to learn to live on what he earned." Nora sighed. "I suppose I lost my temper, too. We . . . had a fight. And then Jim ran away. That's all." She looked up. "That's really all. I never told Father or Mother or anyone about it. Having Jim run out on me just because of a thing like that—"

"Jim never wrote to you?"

"Not once. And I . . . I thought I'd die. The whole town was talking . . . Then Jim came back, and we both admitted what fools we'd been, and here we are."

So from the very first it had been the house, thought Ellery. Queer! Wherever he turned in this case, the house was there. "Calamity House" . . . the author-detective began to feel that the reporter who had invented the phrase was gifted with second sight.

"And these quarrels you and Jim have been having since your marriage?"

Nora winced. "Money. He's been asking for money. And my cameo, and other things . . . But that's just temporary," she said quickly. "He's been gambling at that roadhouse on Route 16—I suppose every man goes through a phase like that—"

"Nora, what can you tell me about Rosemary Haight?"

"Not a thing. I know she's dead, and it sounds an awful thing to say, but . . . I didn't like her at all."

"Amen," murmured Patty grimly. "Can't say I was smitten myself," agreed Ellery. "But do you know anything about her that might tie her in with . . . well, the letters, Jim's conduct, the whole puzzle?"

Nora said tightly: "Jim wouldn't talk about her. But I know what I felt. I don't see how she ever came to be Jim's sister."

"Well, she was," declared Ellery briskly, "and you're tired, Nora. Thanks."

Nora squeezed his hand, and he left as Pat went into the bathroom to wet a towel for her sister's head.

Nothing new. And tomorrow the inquest!

Coroner Salemon was nervous about the whole thing. Any audience more numerous than three paralyzed his vocal cords; and it is a matter of public record that the only time the Coroner opened his mouth at Town Meeting except for breathing purposes was one year when J. C. Pettigrew reared up and demanded to know why the office of Coroner shouldn't be voted out of existence—Chic Salemon hadn't had a corpse to justify his salary in his nine years' tenure. And then all the Coroner could stammer was: "But—sup-pose!"

And so now, at last, there was a corpse.

A corpse meant an inquest, and that meant the Coroner had to sit up there in Judge Martin's court (borrowed from the County for the occasion) and preside; and that meant talk, and lots of it, before hundreds of glittering Wrightsville eyes—not to mention the eyes of Chief Dakin and Prosecutor Bradford and County Sheriff Gilfant and Lord-knows-who.

To make matters worse, there was John F. Wright. To think of the exalted Name linked with a murder weakened the Coroner's knees; John F. was his household god.

To say that the old Coroner sabotaged the testimony deliberately would be unjust to the best horse-shoe pitcher in Wright County. No, it was just that the Coroner was convinced no one connected with the Wrightsville Wrights could possibly have had the least criminal taint. So obviously it was either all a monstrous mistake; the poor woman committed suicide or something . . .

The result was that, to the disgust of Dakin, the relief of Mr. Wright, the sad amusement of Mr. Ellery Queen and—above all—the disappointment of Wrightsville, the confused Coroner's jury brought in a verdict of "death at the hands of person or persons unknown" after several days of altercation, heat, and gavel breaking.

Chief Dakin and Prosecutor Bradford immediately retired to Bradford's office for another conference and the Wrights sped home thankfully.

Gently, gently, into one neat six-foot hole in the ground.

What's her name? Rosalie? Rose-Marie?

They say she was a glamour girl. The one they're burying—the one Jim Haight poisoned by mistake—his sister . . . Who says Jim Haight . . . ? Why, it was right there in the Record only yesterday! Didn't you read it? Frank Lloyd didn't say so, just like that; but you know if you read between the lines . . .

Sure, Frank's sore. Sweet on Nora Wright, Frank was, and Jim Haight cut him out. Never did like Haight. Kind of cold proposition—couldn't look you in the eye, 'pears to me . . . So he was the one, huh? Why don't they arrest him?

That's what I'd like to know! Adios, adios . . .

Think there's dirty work going on?

Wouldn't be prosecuted over! Cart Bradford, the prosecutor, and that Patricia Wright started neckin' years ago. That's Haight's sister-in-law.

Aah, the rich always get away with murder.

Nobody's getting away with murder in Wrightsville! Not if we have to take the law—

Gently, gently . . .

Rosemary Haight was buried in East Twin Hill Cemetery, not (people were quick to remark) in West Twin Hill Cemetery where the Wrights had interred their dead for two hundred-odd years. The transaction was negotiated by John Fowler Wright, acting for his son-in-law James Haight, and Peter Callender, sales manager of the Twin Hill Eternity Estates, Inc.

John F. handed Jim the deed to the grave in silence as they drove back from the funeral.

The next morning Mr. Queen, rising early for purposes of his own, saw the words WIFE KILLER printed in red school chalk on the sidewalk before Calamity House.

Today's Horoscope

If you are celebrating a birthday today, you are impulsive, energetic, argumentative, and you put more faith in your intuition than in your judgment. You are a good and loyal friend and a bad enemy. You are also demonstrative in love, and your happiness in love depends on your receiving as much as you give. Try not to be over-forcible and intolerant of others; avoid impulsiveness. If you do avoid these, your next year will prove a favorable one. Unexpected benefits are foreseen. The child born today should be taught early the futility of worry, and of anticipating misfortunes which, by the way, will rarely materialize.

Poison Ivy Pointers

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.

THE SEASON for poison ivy and poison oak is here again and the woodsman, or the plucker of wild flowers, or even the golfer whose ball happens by an unfortunate accident to get into the rough provided he is susceptible to the ravages of the plant will begin to gaze in suspicious anticipation at the skin of his hands and wonder if that little blister will grow into a great eruption.

Ivy dermatitis affects only susceptible individuals. Many attempts have been made to devise a serum which will produce immunity either for prevention or treatment, but not with any conspicuous success.

Other methods of prevention have been aimed at washing off the resin which the plant leaves on the skin at the earliest possible moment. The offending substance is very sticky and tenacious, so much so that ordinary soap and water will not remove it.

Efficacy of Chemicals

Experiments have been made to determine how effective the chemicals often employed to remove the resin from the skin are. The experiments were conducted in the following manner.

Fresh green leaves of the poison ivy plant were gathered by a person not sensitive to the plant. A portion of the leaf was bruised by rolling it between the thumb and each finger depositing as near as possible an equal amount of oleoresin on each finger. Then a volunteer who was known to be sensitive to poison ivy allowed his skin to be lightly stroked by a finger on which the oleoresin had been deposited. No visible stain or moisture could be seen on the skin of the stroked area but in spite of this, if left alone on the skin of a sensitive person a typical poison ivy dermatitis resulted going through the stages from redness and inflammation to blister formation.

The first preventive used was laundry soap and running water.

Sodium perborate did not prevent the eruption and white petrolatum made it worse due to the solubility of the ivy oleoresin in oily mediums.

The reputation which many of these preparations had is based on freedom from discomfort on field trips and under these circumstances no one can be sure that he has really been contaminated by bruised plants. The experiments here recorded were certain and exact.

Potassium permanganate 10% aqueous solution applied in the same way did prevent the eruption in most instances and reduced its severity in nearly all, even if applied as long after exposure as five or ten minutes. This seems to be the best preparation for this kind of prevention. But in highly sensitive individuals even it fails.

WHILE THERE are indications of progress, preferment, pleasure and attaining of cherished hopes and wishes, judging by the lunar transit there must be much tact, moderation, good nature and clear judgment used in the effort to capture such objectives and accruing gratifications. Any show of expediency, forced issues, or inaccuracy may offend those able to assist to desired goals. Be reticent when possible, cheerful and complacent, while endeavoring to realize such unforeseen benefits. Be courteous with superiors in domestic and social contacts.

Those whose birthday it is have the prospect of some sort of unpredictable benefits, with pleasures unlooked for, tokens of good will and preferment, but this only by the use of restraints of actions and speech, with finesse, graciousness and tact toward those whose favor or support are essential. This show of consideration, modesty, conformity and understanding may prove gainful in some unexpected way as well as, in social, domestic and romantic affiliations—being agreeable rather than forceful or impetuous.

A child born on this day may have excellent opportunities and good fortune, with pleasure and success, if it will exert its finer social and agreeable qualities rather than impulse and immoderation.

Truman New Haven Charges
Cause a Political Uproar

Axis Scooped at U. S.'s
Plane Plans—Now Look!

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—The tumult and shouting stirred up among Republicans by Senator Harry S. Truman's New Haven, Conn., speech is only now beginning to rise to crescendo. And there are even some moderate Democrats who feel Truman went too far in accusing Republican leaders of playing politics in the midst of war by fighting the New Deal.

First result of the charges made by the mild-mannered chairman of the Senate war investigating committee may be a let-down in committee harmony. Truman, of course, tossed a grenade in committee ranks by accusing the Republicans of using disclosures of the committee as political ammunition.

Henceforth, if Truman's speech is a pace-setter, the air will be blue with a pre-campaign barrage of political invective.

It is understood that most of the southern Democrats in both Senate and House are vexed that the Missouri senator should have started "hitting below the belt." That is what they consider impugning the patriotic motives of the opposition during a political campaign.

The Republicans are expected to strike back at Truman's charges very soon, over the radio and from the rostrum and in public meetings and public halls.

There was general surprise that Truman, usually gentle and restrained, should have authored such a blast at President Roosevelt's political foes.

"He has gone too far," one southern senator said. "He has set a bad precedent that may lead to a campaign of accusations in the midst of war—a campaign we southern Democrats do not wish to see."

Back in 1942 when President Roosevelt called for the production of 125,000 planes a year, Axis propaganda sources gave out the horse laugh, calling the figure fantastic and solemnly reassured their peoples that such a production goal was impossible of attainment.

In a strictly literal sense, the Axis turned out to be partially

A PIG FOR THE POOR

NEWARK, N. J. — What's the good of winning a prize pig if you haven't enough points to use it for eating purposes? That's what members of the Newark Kiwanis Club asked each other after they paid $108,000 for Gov. Charles Edison's prize porker at a War Bond rally. When they discovered they couldn't assemble enough points to keep the porker, they turned it over to the Salvation Army.

Summer Spector

ONE of early Spring's smartest novelties was the knitted yarn jumper worn over a crepe shirt and above a sports skirt. It is a fashion to take over for all Summer, for every season has its chilly, rainy days when light colored and lightweight clothes are revolting.

This particular outfit in this genre combines navy crepe shirt and wool flannel skirt with a spice brown jumper knit with ribbing over the hips clear to the belt line. It calls for brown brogues to match the calf-skin belt, set with brassy hardware.

Bits on Books

By Enid Denham

"Lost Island", by James Norman Hall one of the co-authors of "Mutiny on the Bounty" and "Men Against the Sea" as well as "Pitcairn's Island", has now written a very poignant tale of an island destroyed, as far as its beauty and culture are concerned for the use of the war machine. Told by one who knew and loved the little island and the quietness of native life, this novel contains little plot or characters, simply a picture imaginative and sorrowful of the conversion necessary to make this formerly lovely spot into an efficient air base.

"Poldrate Street" by Garnett Weston is a very different story. Perhaps you read "Kings' Row." You may be reminded of it at times in this story. There are a number of very ordinary people who live as neighbors on a small block and who do the most unusual things. In these five old fashioned houses, on a one way street, there is murder, theft, covetedness, savagery in a tale so fascinating, so full of primitive emotions, that you will want to continue it far into the night. There was "Face" the newsboy who sold magazines in inopportune times "and peeped." Mafia Breen who wished for success as an undertaker and who wanted red-haired Kitty McKay, Dr. Palling who could have been an excellent physician but who had become a charlatan because of his greed, Jim, who came back for a visit and brought with him the inexplicable "Highway." "A tramp if there ever was one" was what Poldrate Street would have said and did. And yet it is Highway who makes the tale, you know that somehow he will not fail you.

"Wedding Day" by Mrs. Edna Moser is the story of what happened and why on the youngest daughter's wedding day. It is a pleasant, swift moving account of the emotional complications involved in the lives of Eugenia Fersen, her husband, and her children. It ends happily with all the proper solutions, tho we still wonder about Jack. A story of so many of the problems in a war time marriage and some of the problems left over from the hero worship of the last war. A readable interesting story of very likable people.

TO GAS WOODCHUCKS

ITHACA, N. Y. — New York State farmers have ordered 100,000 gas cartridges for use in the Spring campaign against woodchucks. The cartridges will be thrown into woodchuck burrows to set off deadly fumes of calcium cyanide gas. William S. Heit of the Fish and Wildlife Service, now stationed at the State College of Agriculture, estimates that these cartridges will save farmers 6 to 10 million pounds of food-stuffs for human use.

SHOVELFUL OF MANURE

EXTRA LARGE
PUMPKINS

Growing Jack-O-Lanterns in Victory Garden

By DEAN HALLIDAY
Released by Central Press Association

SINCE PUMPKINS are not an overly important vegetable they should not be included in the small Victory garden unless they can serve two purposes, such as producing fruit for pies, and at the same time serve as a screening planting. With their rapid growth of enormous leaves, their large flowers and fruits, pumpkins can be used to advantage growing along and partly over unsightly fences, walls or stone piles. A few hills will supply ample pumpkins for the average family with enough of the big fruits left over to supply the children with Jack-O-Lanterns at Halloween time.

Still another method of space saving in the small Victory garden is to grow pumpkins in the corn patch, as illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph. Pumpkins are usually planted in hills, four to six seeds in each hill. Later, but before the plants begin to vine, they are thinned out to two or three plants.

If extra large pumpkins are desired place a shovelful of manure in the bottom of each hill, as illustrated. When pumpkins are grown for extra size the foliage should be pinched back to throw as much of the plant's energy as possible into producing large size fruits instead of an abundance of leaves.

JAYCEES GAIN 6 TO 2 EDGE OVER KAHN JEWELERS

Jaycees win a ball game! The victims? Kahn Jewelers girls team of Columbus.

Climaxing dedication ceremonies at Ted Lewis Park Monday evening, the Junior Chamber of Commerce softball team gained a 6 to 2 edge over the Kahn girls of Columbus.

The game was a hard fought contest, with Mary Geddes, starting hurler for Kahn's and Ken Dillman, Jaycee pitcher, locked in a battle royal, with neither team being able to score any runs in the first five frames. Due to an important game in Columbus Tuesday evening, Miss Geddes hurled only three innings, giving up only two safeties. She was replaced by "Ginny" James, who was effective in the next two frames, but faltered in the sixth when the local team pushed four runs across the plate. K. Dillman and E. White were the big guns in this uprising, each driving in two runs, Dillman getting a double with two mates aboard and White a four base out with one on the sacks. The Jaycees tallied two more in the eighth.

The Kahn team started a belated rally in the ninth in which they were able to score two runs, but were not able to overcome the home team lead.

The Kahn girls lived up to all pre-game expectations, putting on the field a team that is comparable to most men's teams. Many fast and exciting plays were executed by the visitors among these being two double plays. The play of the entire Kahn team was above reproach.

The play of Sara Willoughby, Kahn first sacker, and the now-you-see-it-now-you-don't pitching of "Ginny" James, drew the plaudits of the throng of spectators that witnessed the game.

The Jaycees were able to collect 10 hits off the offerings of Geddes and James, while the Kahn girls gained six bingles off the slants of Dillman.

The lineup:

Kahn's: M. Merrick, c; M. Geddes, p-rs; S. Willoughby, 1b; M. Ryan, 2b; R. Wagner, ss; J. Chapman, 3b; M. Branch, rf; Smith, cf; E. Merrick, lf; James, r-p.

Jaycees: H. Graef, c; H. Dean, 3b; K. Dillman, p; E. White, 1b; J. Stout, ss; J. Lanman, rs; J. Moore, lf; B. Lawrence, 2b; H. Clifton, cf; F. Sosa, rf.

CLEVELAND WINS

CLEVELAND, June 13 — The Cleveland Indians chose Vern Kennedy to take to the mound today in an effort to repeat or better yesterday's performance with the Detroit Tigers which found the Clevelanders winning by the close score of 6 to 5. A five-run rally in the fourth inning gave the Indians the edge. Ed Klemm was credited with the win and Johnny Gorman the loss.

SEWELL VS. WALTERS

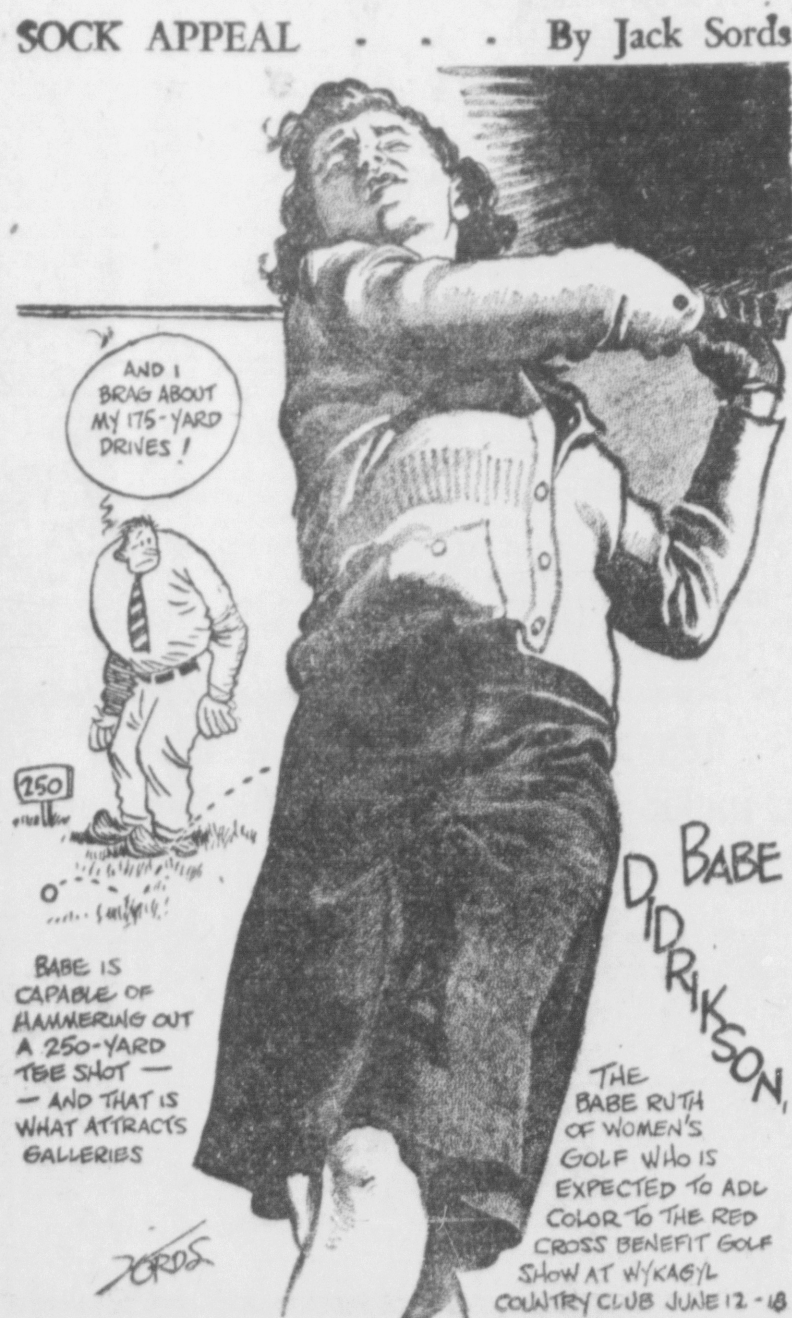

CINCINNATI, June 13 — Rip Sewell was chosen by the Pittsburgh Pirates to oppose Red Hurler Bucky Walters as play is resumed in the Ohio city today.

No game was scheduled for yesterday.

BIRDS REDUCE BREWERS' LEAD BY 7 TO 2 WIN

By International News Service

The Columbus Red Birds today had reduced the lead of the league-leading Milwaukee Brewers to five games by virtue of Ken Burkhardt's 7 to 2 triumph last night.

The Brewers were held helpless until the seventh inning. The Columbus team meanwhile were hitting Earl Caldwell for 17 safe ones. Burkhardt allowed only six blows. The Birds scored one in the first, two in the second, one each in the sixth and seventh and the last two in the eighth. Milwaukee's only two marks were made in the seventh.

At Kansas City the Toledo Mud Hens defeated the Blues by a score of 6 to 4. A three run rally in the fourth inning gave the Hens the lead over the Blues, a lead which they never relinquished until the game ended.

Ed Miller was credited with the win.

The Louisville Colonels staged a four-run rally in the fifth inning of their game with Minneapolis giving them a 6 to 3 lead—and then came the rain to give them the game.

The deluge started almost immediately after the Millers finished their half of the fifth but the game was not called until four Colonels had faced the pitcher in the sixth frame. Curtis was charged with the loss.

DIES IN ACTION WITH BOMBERS

By Jack Sords

NEW YORK, June 13—Jefferson Davis Dickson, Jr., who went from Natchez, Miss., to Paris, and established himself as the No. 1 sports promoter of Europe, has been killed in action while serving as a captain in the U. S. Army, it was disclosed today.

Captain Dickson had been stationed in England as a bombing squadron intelligence officer and was lost in a flight near Paris last July. At that time he was reported missing but yesterday the War department listed him as killed in action.

Dickson had an uncanny knack of picking out boxers, figure skaters, wrestlers and any one else who might please a large sports audience. He established and operated in Paris the Palais De Sport which became known as the "European Madison Square Garden."

Dickson was 47 years old and is survived by a widow, Mrs. Louise Dickson, of the Waldorf-Astoria Towers, and a daughter, Christine Lee Dickson.

GIANTS ADDING TO MYSTERY OF REAL STRENGTH

Unpredictable Outfit Hits 10 Homers In Last Three Games—Drop Dodgers

NEW YORK, June 13—The most unpredictable outfit in the National league, without question, is New York. The Giants started the season in handy fashion, establishing themselves as a dark horse in the early running, slumped dizzily into seventh place late last month, and now are only a half game out of third place. On top of that, the Giants are staging a sustained and frenzied batting attack in which they have collected 10 homers in the last three games, after falling off for a period at the plate.

Starting with the Philadelphia Phillies in a double header Sunday and continuing the merry-go-round at the expense of the Brooklyn Dodgers, the Giants, in a sudden burst of power, have wacked out, in the past three games, an average of 12 hits, nine runs and three homers per contest.

Leading this savage attack is Phil Weintraub, the ex-jewelry salesman who started the season as just another ball player who had had a great deal of tough luck. In co-starring with Manager Mel Ott in the Giants' 15 to 9 win over the Brooklyn Dodgers yesterday, Weintraub crossed the plate five times and knocked in five runs. In his last 13 games, Phil has blasted 19 hits, including seven homers and two triples; has walked 11 times, knocked in 18 runs and scored 14. This is the guy, remember, who was tagged as a major league washout.

Yesterday's triumph over the Dodgers was reminiscent of the Giants' April 30 onslaught when the Dodgers wound up on the short end of a 26 to 8 score. Although the Dodgers hit Bill Voiselle for four runs in the very first frame, the Giants came back in the same inning to score five, and continue on Les Webber, Cal McLish and Wes Flowers for a dozen hits and 11 runs in three innings.

Ott collected his homers in the first and eighth innings and Weintraub blasted his circuit clouts in the third with two on and in the fifth. French Bordagaray also came through with a homer for Brooklyn in the free-hitting contest, as did Mickey Owen, but they were wasted.

If the New York Yankees don't lose a ball game in the ninth inning, you can depend on them to prolong the agony and lose in some overtime frame as demonstrated in last night's contest which they

REAL BRAINBUSTER

Dunninger continues his habit of making the news on his Wednesday broadcast, when he will attempt mentally to read a headline from the next day's paper before the paper is even printed! This Brain Buster represents Dick Powell's personal challenge to Dunninger, as it is patterned after an incident in "It Happened Tomorrow," a motion picture which stars Dick. Under the supervision of his guests for that night--Dorothy Kilgallen, well-known Broadway columnist; Shep Fields, one of America's favorite orchestra leaders, and Harry Brown of the New York Community Sales Division of the War Finance Committee--the Master Mentalist will endeavor to read a headline writer's mind while the latter is working at his desk several miles from the studio.

Kenny Baker is subbing on Saturdays for Groucho Marx who will leave July 1, accompanied by his program singer, Fay McKenzie, for a month's tour of service hospitals. Their jaunt will extend as far east as Massachusetts. Groucho and Fay will put on a two-hour show for the boys at each stop.

Sponsors of "Life of Riley," starring William Bendix, are dickering with the network for a later Sunday daytime slot for the show.

Jimmy Durante, who cavorts with Garry Moore Friday nights, is going to star in "Jumbo" all over again. The Schozzie was the comedy sensation of this lavish musical general seasons ago and now MGM is going to make it into a technicolor spectacle with Durante once more the focal point for laughs.

Here's an unusual draft twist. Bernie Glow, young trumpet player heard with Xavier Cugat, was called for induction the same day as his 37-year-old father. Bernie was put in 4-F... his father was accepted!

This week Dinah Shore made a special record for the Armed Forces Radio Service to help celebrate the service's first birthday. Her record is being flown to England to be broadcast to the invasion forces.

Victor Borge, the Danish comedian, heard on "Chamber Music Society of Lower Basin Street," over the Blue network Sunday nights, joins the long list of radio comedians who have turned writer. Unlike the others, though, Borge has penned a play instead of a

20--Leads at a Suit
AGAINST a suit contract, the opening leader has a purpose which is different from that of his usual lead against a No Trump contract. Instead of trying to establish the little cards of his long suit--which probably will only be trumped by the declarer or the dummy--he concentrates more on taking the maximum number of tricks with his side's high cards. Consequently he bases his choice of suit more on the top cards in it than on its length.

This causes a player to classify his holdings under three main headings, which might be called positive, doubtful and negative, or desirable, neutral and undesirable. The positive or desirable leads are those from suits--regardless of their length--which are headed by solid combinations of honors in sequence, and the negative or undesirable ones those which are headed by an honor or honors not in sequence.

Thus, the lead of a K from A-K or K-Q-J or K-Q-10 is highly positive and desirable, whereas any lead would be undesirable from K-9-4, Q-10-8, K-J or A-Q, because it might present the declarer a trick and cost you one.

In between fall the leads of a card from a suit which does not contain honors at its top. When leading from such a suit, the logical card is the fourth-best if the suit is of four cards or more. If it is of only two or three cards, the lead is the top card.

There you have the simple set of standard leading principles against a suit when your partner had not bid--prefer the top card of a solid combination, avoid leading a suit headed by high honors not in sequence and instead generally prefer one from a topless suit to jeopardizing any non-touching honors.

If your partner had bid a suit, you usually will lead that, and with most partners should invariably select your highest card of it. With advanced players, if you hold four it will generally be better to lead the fourth-best unless you have the ace, which is preferred, or touching honors, when you lead the standard card from the touchers.

There are times when it is well to lead an ace against a suit contract--if it is in a long suit of five cards or more and you fear it may be ruffed if you do not score it at once, if it is a singleton and you hope to ruff the second round of the suit, or if it is a doubleton and you hope to ruff the third round. When you hold an A-K alone, without any other cards of the suit, it is well to violate the rule of leading the K and lead the A first, followed by the K. With fine players, this means that you have no more and tells your partner you want to trump the next round of the suit.

When you win the first trick with your lead and intend to repeat the suit, the standard practice is to lead next the lowest card of your sequence, so your partner can tell how long it is. Thus, if you lead the K from A-K-Q-4, your next lead is the Q, not the A. And from K-Q-J-3, your K would be followed by the J, not the Q.

These same general principles, governing what card to lead from a suit of a certain composition, also apply to leads later in the play, except that your tactics may then be altered somewhat by the great information you have, from seeing the dummy and the early plays made by your partner and the declarer.

Against a suit contract, the opening leads are often guided by the course of the entire bidding, even more so than in the case of a No Trump contract. That subject will be the next in this series. Tomorrow: Leads From Bidding.

More Than 4,000 Cheer Ted Lewis At Opening of City Park

WORLD FAMOUS ENTERTAINER GUEST OF HONOR

High-Hatted Tragedian Of Song Gets Biggest Thrill Out Of Greeting

More than 4,000 of his home town folk cheered Ted Lewis Monday evening at the formal opening of the city park named after the world famous high hatted tragedian of song.

The assembly was the largest of its kind ever held in Circleville. "I've been thrilled all my life," Ted declared, "but this is the biggest thrill of them all." And he meant it. Ted Lewis always has been proud of his home town, and to have the leaders in all walks of life turn out to pay him tribute constituted an occasion that will remain in his memory.

During the ceremony of introduction preceding the soft ball game featured on the entertainment program Ted Lewis announced that he is making an additional contribution to the park fund in the sum of $1,000. Mrs. Lewis gave $250 to the county Red Cross chapter and Ted announced that he is buying $10,000 in War Bonds under the county's quota.

Rides In Parade

A parade, which preceded the formal opening of the park, moved from Court and Mound street shortly after 6 o'clock. It was headed by a police escort with Ted riding to the park on the city fire truck. A jeep borrowed from Fort Hayes carried Mrs. Lewis and members of Ted's show troupe.

Charlie Whittier, Ted's famous "Shadow" also rode the fire truck as did Mayor Ben Gordon who was host to Ted Lewis for the day.

Following the jeep and its occupants was the Circleville High School band which entertained with several numbers at the corner of Court and Main streets before continuing to the park.

Members of the city police auxiliary and the sheriff's auxiliary were followed by Boy and Girl scout troops.

At the park the high school band played "The Star Spangled Banner" during the ceremony of flag raising which opened the program. Ned C. Stout speaking from the mike of the Franklin County Red Cross sound truck made the announcements at the park.

Ted Introduced

Mayor Ben Gordon introduced Ted Lewis who spoke to the audience amid the cheers of his listeners and told how thrilled he was to be in Circleville and to be able to be present at the opening of the park.

Ted introduced Frank Lynch as the man who was largely responsible for the park. He also brought Ed. Wallace to the mike and presented him with an autographed ball. Mr. Wallace was another member of the original park committee being president of the Chamber of Commerce at that time. The other member of the committee was Harry Bartholomew, now living in Kenova, W. Va. The original committee was appointed by the local Elks who really started the project and aided it by a generous contribution.

The first event on the program was throwing the ball into a barrel from the home plate to second base and was won by Charlie Stevens of the Circle City soft ball team and Squire Smith of the Economy Shoe team. Snow Seymour, of the Blue Ribbon Dairy team, won the second event of circling the bases and he also won the 100 yard dash. Charles Smith, of Economy Shoes, was the winner in throwing the ball from outfield to the home plate. Margaret Merrick of the Columbus Kahn's girls team who competed with the local Jaycees team in the soft ball game that finished the evening's program, also gave an exhibition run around the bases. Miss Merrick last year equalled the world's record circling the bases in 10 1/4 seconds.

Mrs. Lewis made a donation of $250 to the American Red Cross, local chapter.

$15,000 For Ball

To start the softball game, Mayor Gordon threw the ball to Lewis who autographed it and secured the signatures of his cast and then tossed it to C. G. Chalfin who auctioned it off for a $15,000 War Bond purchase to W. G. Hamilton. T. G. Gilliland was runner up on the bond sale.

This was the official opening of the soft ball game which was then played and which was won by the local team by a score of 6 to 2.

Ted arrived in Circleville about 3:30 Monday morning and spent the entire day visiting all his old haunts and some new ones. Berger hospital, which is another of Circleville's institutions that has benefited by Ted's generosity, was viewed early Monday morning and later he called at the home of Mrs. Fannie Parks, Watt street. Mrs. Parks was his nurse. To please Ted, she attended the celebration at the park although she has been confined to her home for a number of years following a stroke of paralysis.

Ted also stopped off at The Daily Herald plant and recalled W. C. Darst and C. C. Chappellear for whom he passed papers as a child.

Refreshment Profit

Robert Tootle and Charles Glitt, members of the refreshment committee at the park, announced a profit of $34 which will be added to the park fund.

Much credit for the success of the park is due to the efforts of the city service department under the direction of Clarence Helvering, director, and also to Henry McCrady, Pickaway county engineer for his work on the roadway.

'A BIT OF IRONY'

NEW YORK—Two million electric hand irons for civilians—the first to be manufactured since 1940—are scheduled for manufacture this year from material released by the War Labor Board to help relieve the shortage of this labor-saver. However, the new irons probably will not reach retail stores until early Summer.

ROBERT BROWN ASSIGNED TO ARMY HOSPITAL

Robert Brown, son of Mr. and Mrs. Rockford Brown, of East High street, has returned from Tusculum College, Greenville, Tenn., and is spending a few days with his parents before being assigned for the Summer to a U. S. Army base hospital. He has finished all requirements in pre-medic at Tusculum, although he will not receive his diploma until his class is graduated in 1945.

Brown will begin army service this month and will enter Jefferson Medical college, Philadelphia, Pa., October 9 for medical training.

He is a 1941 graduate of Circleville high school.

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON

at about 6 p. m., the President was his usual wise-cracking self.

"I suppose we ought to take an inventory to find out how many of you boys will be back here next year," he remarked.

"That's a good idea, provided you believe in reciprocity," shot back Representative John Sparkman of Alabama, indulging in Washington's favorite pastime of angling regarding the fourth term. But the President didn't rise to the bait.

He had just finished his afternoon swim and apparently was relaxed. He remarked that he was going to broadcast on the fall of Rome later in the evening, and explained that the problem of feeding the Italians was growing more difficult.

"When Rome fell, we had several shiploads of grain at a nearby harbor all ready to feed the people," he commented, "and there is a good deal more on the way." He added that grain did not appeal to him as appetizing in its raw state, but that the Italians will get plenty of macaroni and spaghetti out of it.

SIGN OF NERVOUSNESS

Representative Francis Walter of Pennsylvania presented the President with an odd gift during the visit—a letter opener made from the forearm of a Jap soldier killed in the Pacific.

"This is the sort of gift I like to get," the President said, as it was placed on his desk.

Representative Walter apologized for presenting such a small part of the Jap's anatomy. But the President interrupted him. "There'll be plenty more such gifts," he said.

The President did not touch the letter opener with his fingers, however. He probed it with a metal letter opener of his own, and called Assistant President Jimmy Byrnes and White House Assistant, Jim Barnes to look at it.

At about this time, the President lit a cigarette and his Congressional callers noted that his usually steady hand shook a bit. He looked in excellent health, but some of them were worried.

Leaving the office at the end of the visit, one of them asked Justice Byrnes about the President's nervousness. Byrnes, who knew what was coming later that night, replied: "That man has an awful lot on his mind." A few hours later, the Congressional callers realized how true this was.
